

Home > Housing Zone > Industry Data & Research > New Home Company buys NoCal lots

Print Email

New Home Company buys NoCal lots

Future homes will be the first single-family residences built in Folsom, Calif., in three years

By Mary Beth Nevulis, HousingZone Contributing Editor
November 2, 2011

New Home Company plans to build the first single-family homes in Folsom, Calif., in three years.

The New Home Company has purchased 128 single-family detached lots within The Parkway masterplan in Folsom, the company's northern California division president, Kevin Carson, announced Wednesday, as reported by the Sacramento Business Journal.

The price was not disclosed. The company will begin working with architects on designs, which are expected to range in size from 1,700 to 2,100 square feet, Carson said.

The Parkway is a 612-acre community, about five miles from Intel's Folsom campus. The homes will be the first single-family homes to be built in the community in three years.

Model homes will open in July, according to Carson.

Comments on: "New Home Company buys NoCal lots"